

Mrs. Google asked a group of first grade students to log into the lab computers and open up the software called Word. Look at the picture below and think about the computer rules that have been broken. What can these students do to show they are good computer users?

